DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 18 January 2005 has been entered.

Specification

The specification is objected to as failing to provide proper antecedent basis for the claimed subject matter. See 37 CFR 1.75(d)(1) and MPEP § 608.01(o). Correction of the following is required: Antecedent basis should be provided for the surfaces of the first and second bristle supports being capable of lying in substantially the same plane during operation of the electric toothbrush.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1, 2 and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yukawa et al (US patent 5,504,959) in view of Japanese patent 9-294631.

The patent to Yukawa discloses a head (5) for an electric toothbrush (fig.3). The toothbrush head includes a pair of oscillatably, rotatable bristle supports (56), each having a surface from which bristles (57) extend in a perpendicular fashion. Note that the surfaces of the bristle supports lie in the same plane.

The patent to Yukawa discloses all of the above recited subject matter with the exception of the bristles on the second bristle support being angled at an acute angle to its surface and being angled away from and towards the bristles of the first support.

The Japanese patent discloses an electric toothbrush (fig.1) which includes a head (1c) for rotatably supporting a bristle support (2a). The bristle support includes bristles (5) that are both perpendicular to the surface and angle at an acute angle thereto (see fig.4a) to enable simultaneous top and side cleaning of teeth.

It would have been obvious to one of skill in the art to substitute the bristle support with bristles perpendicular and angled, as clearly taught by the Japanese patent, for the bristle supports of Yukawa, to promote cleaning of the sides of teeth simultaneous with the tops. It appears such would provide enhanced cleaning. Providing such bristle supports with both angled and perpendicular bristles on the brush of Yukawa would meet the limitation of some of the second bristles angled both away from and towards at least some of the first bristles as the two heads of Yukawa are side by side.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claim 1 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection. As set forth above, the surfaces of the first and second bristle supports of Yukawa lie in the same plane (fig.3).

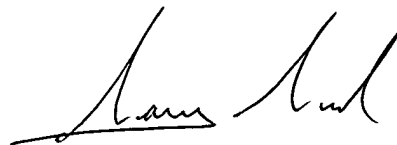

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
